CBS ratings for the week ending Dec. 8 were down 19% compared to the same week last year. Sunday's episode of "The Big Bang Theory" was the show's lowest-rated episode since the 2014-15 season. On the other hand, "Murphy Brown" returned for its third season on CBS on Dec. 8 after a two-week hiatus. "The Big Bang Theory" was down 30% from its previous low, averaging a 4.5 rating and 11 share. The show saw its lowest rated episode since the season premiere episode of the 2014-15 season. It was also the show's lowest rated episode since the seventh episode of the third season, which aired on Nov. 26, 2014. Meanwhile, "Murphy Brown" rebounded from its lowest rated episode of the season with a 2.7/8 and 7.6 million viewers. "Murphy Brown" had also rebounded from a series low with an average of 2.8 million viewers in its previous season opener. CBS placed a "BrainDead" Halloween special in its regular schedule at the beginning of this week's TV week. The show was ranked No. 1 in the timeslot in both adults 18-49 and total viewers.Evaluation of the periodontal status in patients with multiple failed implants. To evaluate and classify the perioidontal status in patients with multiple failed implants. Fifty patients (44 women, 6 men) with multiple failed implants underwent evaluation of periodontal parameters, including plaque index, gingival index, probing depth, bone loss, and prosthetic complications. The mean age of the patients was 47.8 years. The average number of implants per patient was 7.5. The number of implants per patient, depending on the number of failed implants, was as follows: 0, 1, 2, 3, and 4 and 5 and 6. The most frequent failure was loosening of the abutment in 14 implants (28%). Also, the most frequent complication was the failure of fixation of the abutment in 17 implants (34%). Of these, six implants (11.5%) needed prosthetic replacement. The results showed that the most frequent failure was of the cement-retained prostheses, followed 2d92ce491b
